The Calendar app on Apple devices has several beneficial features like sharing the calendar with other users, creating and editing events, sending or replying to invitations, and much more. My favorite feature among them all is the ability to color code calendars.

How does color coding Calendar events help?

There are several published papers on how color helps increase memory and attention. A quick search on the internet will tell you the same. And talking from personal experience, it is accurate and helps enhance memory performance.

Even with the subject of attention and memory kept aside, if you assign a color to every single repeating event in your calendar, it will stand out from the rest and help identify it early when searching for it.

For example, if you've color-coded every event and are looking for family and friends' birthdays in December, a quick glance at the calendar and the event you're looking for will stand. Why? Because you remember the color assigned to it and can identify it more easily.

For all you marvel fans out there, think of it like the supernatural abilities of Daredevil.

How to change color of Calendar on iPhone or iPad

- 1. Open Calendar app on your iPhone or iPad.
- 2. Tap the "Calendars" option at the bottom of the screen.
- 3. Select the 'i' (information icon) next to the calendar you want to change the color for.
- 4. Tap the Color option.

5. You can now select from the list of already available colors or tap Custom... to

How to change color of calendar on Mac

The process of color coding events on Mac is very similar to the iPhone and iPad. However, because the user interface is different, we have the steps below to guide you through the process.

- 1. Open the Calendar App on your Mac device.
- 2. Click on the Calendar icon at the top left corner. A list of all the calendars will appear.
